I've always been interested in directory sites and how well they could do, and was exposed to this during my day job at a Healthcare ratings website. Using that experience as a jumpoff point I partnered with a friend on a new site called called PetVetratings.com. This is a new directory that lists Veterinarian hospitals, clinics, and veterinarians in the US. The site is just starting out, so right now they have listings by clinic or hospital, but have plans for Veterinarian directory as well as expansion plans for veterinarian hospital reviews, clinics and vet care, and possibly a store.
